

The 25th Annual Black Experiences Lecture

BLACK SYNERGIES: Surveying Afromexican History With African American Linkages

Presented By:
Ben Vinson, III

Professor of Latin American History at Johns Hopkins University

This talk aims to provide an historical overview of the African presence in Mexico from the period of the Conquest through the independence era. Beginning with the advent of the new Mexican Republic in the 1820's, the presentation concludes by exploring synergies between African American history and Afromexican history.

Tuesday, September 20, 2011
7:00pm Elaine Langone Center Forum

Sponsored by the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Gender,
the Latin American Studies Program, and the History Department

Bucknell
UNIVERSITY