

Center for the Study of Race,
Ethnicity, and
Gender

22nd ANNUAL
BLACK EXPERIENCES LECTURE

RACE
AND THE 2008 ELECTIONS

Melissa Harris-Lacewell

*Associate Professor of Politics and African American Studies,
Princeton University*

Wednesday
October 22, 2008

7:00 p.m.

Hunt Hall
Formal
(Room 101)

The 2008 presidential election is historic for many reasons. The primary battle between Senators Barack Obama and Hillary Clinton and the VP candidacy of Sarah Palin are changing the pictures in our heads of what is possible and what should be possible in American politics. Professor Harris-Lacewell examines the role of race in these elections using public opinion data, political psychology, and a little dose of necessary humor.

Co-sponsored by the Office of the Provost and the University
Lectureship Committee

Bucknell
UNIVERSITY