

Commerce & Finance Career Path --- Career Development Center

Mr. Frank Ripa, now retired, used his Commerce and Finance degree from Bucknell University to go into a variety of careers, including the vice-president of a perfume company. While networking wasn't critical to his career, he says graduate school is very important, as are algebra, computer and accounting skills. During a typical day, Mr. Ripa says his most important activity was applying himself as a tool to his clients. While he is frustrated by the constant deadlines, Mr. Ripa says he most enjoyed working with many, many businesses. Mr. Ripa recommends his field of work to anyone who loves numbers or finance and is a people person. If given the chance to do it all over again, he says he would do it exactly the same, because it was well-suited for him, however, he would have liked to have done more charity work.
