

Economics Career Path --- Career Development Center

Mrs. Kristen M. Callahan, class of 1977, has used her Bucknell degree in Economics to become a professor at Mercer County Community College, a job whose responsibilities include teaching, advising, and preparing for her classes. While her career requires an undergraduate degree, graduate school has also become almost necessary to the career, as is teaching experience and practical business experience. When asked what she enjoys most about her field of work, she replied, "helping others improve their lives by teaching them;" however, the fact that there's always too much to do can be slightly frustrating. With no regrets, Kristen recommends her profession to energetic people who are interested in helping others and suggests that while networking wasn't as critical to him personally.
