ELECTION 2016
What’s at stake?

The People & The Police:
Policing Practices and Resident’s Views on the Police: Evidence from Philadelphia

In the aftermath of shootings of unarmed African Americans by police, questions have been raised about policing policy. At the same time, police have been targeted themselves in Baton Rouge and Dallas. Is a hostile relationship between police and African American citizens the whole story? What can research tell us and what policies might create a safer environment for all of us?

Professor Massaro (Geography) and her students; Ty Chung, Maddie Galvez, and Patricha Williams, will talk about their ongoing research on over policing and gentrification in minority communities in Philadelphia.

11 a.m. -12 p.m.,
Thursday, Sept. 22
Academic West Event Lounge, 1st floor

Pizza and Drinks for All!

SPONSORED BY THE BUCKNELL INSTITUTE FOR PUBLIC POLICY