The community gathering on April 27th, Bucknell students, staff, and community members came together in mourning and to honor the lives lost in recent years to police brutality. We were breaking today. Justice would be Ma’Khia Bryant living to see her young sister grow old. Justice was created that we must take advantage of through the use of media and technology. The main goal of the event was to invoke the desire to make drastic change as there was a realization that something needed to be done.

[Image: Community gathering]

Le’Andra Leseur’s “Movement as Resistance” event allowed us to become conscious of our body movements and honor the different parts of our bodies that allow us to exist, move, and remain in certain positions. This is important that we honor our bodies and what we have made with other people and the love we should have for ourselves. She talked about how we can allow ourselves to be present in our bodies.

[Image: Movement as Resistance]

Professor Dancy is currently a Computer Science professor at Bucknell. Professor Dancy is an independent study and was continued by Michelle Lauver, Christian Howard-Sukhil and Robin. Professor Dancy is also a member of the Griot Institute and has been working on the project for the past two years. Professor Dancy is currently a Computer Science professor at Bucknell. Professor Dancy is also a member of the Griot Institute and has been working on the project for the past two years.

[Image: Griot Institute]

The Griot Institute: May Newsletter

Check out some of the interesting events that took place so far this past month!

---Past Events---

1) The Griot Institute hosted a drumming session. The aim is to provide an outlet for creative and musical expression. In a typical year, each semester for eight weeks, The Griot facilitates a once per week, hour-long drumming session. The Griot Institute for the Study of Black Lives and African Diasporas, which runs the Griot, was founded by the late Carmen Gillespie. The organization is committed to providing a platform for the study of Black lives and African Diasporas.

2) The Sankofa series is a monthly discussion focused on African American history. The Sankofa series is a monthly discussion focused on African American history. This month's discussion was about the civil rights movement. The discussion was led by Dr. John Johnson, a historian and civil rights activist. Dr. Johnson discussed the impact of the civil rights movement on society and the ongoing struggle for equality.

3) The Civil Rights Project is currently undergoing a reorganization and is in the process of removing problematic content. The project's collections from its initial location on its Omeka Timeline have been replaced with a new collection that is more inclusive. The project aims to draft a narrative of Bucknell and its role in the Civil Rights Movement.

4) The Griot Institute hosted a lecture series titled "Technologies of Disruption". This class will mainly focus on computing and technological advancements. The professor of the class will be Professor Dancy, who is currently a Computer Science professor at Bucknell. Professor Dancy is also a member of the Griot Institute and has been working on the project for the past two years.

5) The Griot Institute hosted a lecture series titled "Technologies of Disruption". This class will mainly focus on computing and technological advancements. The professor of the class will be Professor Dancy, who is currently a Computer Science professor at Bucknell. Professor Dancy is also a member of the Griot Institute and has been working on the project for the past two years.

---Future Events---

Check out the future class! For his role in encouraging students to pursue their true dreams, and providing great and inspiring opportunities to the community, Professor David Mitchell is a hero not only to our students but also to everyone's enemy: technical difficulties. Indeed, Professor David Mitchell is a hero not only to our students but also to everyone's enemy: technical difficulties. He continues to do so and takes his position at Bucknell very seriously as he teaches the students and helps them overcome their technical difficulties.

[Image: David Mitchell teaching]

Thomas Jefferson Anderson, who is currently a music professor at Bucknell, will be performing at the Griot Institute. Thomas Jefferson Anderson, who is currently a music professor at Bucknell, will be performing at the Griot Institute. His performance will be a tribute to his late father, who was a well-known composer. The Griot Institute will also be hosting a lecture on the life and work of William Grant Still, a prominent African American composer. The lecture will be given by Dr. Susan Hughes, a musicologist and historian.

[Image: Thomas Jefferson Anderson]

---Contact Information---

For more information about the Griot Institute, please visit our website at griot.bucknell.edu. To get in touch with us, you can email info@griot.bucknell.edu or call (570) 577-2500. We are always looking for new ways to engage with our community and encourage everyone to get involved. We hope you will join us in our efforts to promote understanding and appreciation of Black culture and history. Thank you for your support!